MONMOUTH COUNTY ECO TOUR, AUGUST 17, 2019
Visit Local Sites of Sustainable Practice

(Red Bank, NJ. July 10, 2019). Learn about sustainable practices happening in Monmouth County, NJ! The Monmouth County Eco Tour is hosting their annual event on Saturday, August 17th from 9am to 2pm. Access the map of participating locations on the group's website www.mocoecotour.com.

Included on the tour are private homesteads and gardens with mushroom cultivation, bee keeping, earth ships, rain barrels, urban farming, solar panel use, permaculture design, chicken coops, and more. Municipal sites include community gardens, composting, recycling education centers, and LEAD buildings.

Residents and communities that want to join the tour are invited to register before August 1st to be included on the website's map.

"MoCoEco Tour" stands for Monmouth County Eco Tour. They are a collective of residents and business throughout the country who are dedicated to building sustainable foundations for current and future generations by focusing on the need for conscious consumption and co-creation. Their goal includes creating solutions that address resource depletion through education and reskilling and by strengthening the local economy.

MoCoEcoTour is a not-for-profit, volunteer run and community focused organization currently sponsored by Lifestyle Geographer and Community Greenmarket Organizers.
